Christ's Second Coming

Our Lord refers to the dramatic changes in the natural elements when the world is coming to an end. "The powers of heaven will be shaken." In other words, the whole universe will tremble at the Lord's coming in power and glory. Mankind will see the power and glory of the Son of Man coming to judge the living and the dead. Both God's justice and mercy to men throughout history will shine forth for all to see.

The coming of Christ is therefore a day of terror for evildoers, but a great day of joy for those who have remained faithful. The victory Christ won on the Cross; the victory over sin, satan and over death, will be seen clearly with all its implications. Those who have responded to the love and compassion of God will enter into eternal life. Those who have refused them to the end will be consigned to the fire that is never extinguished.

Christ tells us than nobody knows the day nor the hour-only God Himself. He exhorts us to remain vigilant and ready. We must dedicate our lives to prayer and sacrifice. We must abound in good works toward one another. If we live our lives in this manner, we will be ready!

In Christ,
Fr. Jeff Fasching
