Stewardship

The Catechism of the Catholic Church uses the words “steward” and “stewardship” in several ways: No. 859, “[The Apostles are] ‘stewards of the mysteries of God’”; 893, “The bishop is the steward of the grace”; 952, “A Christian is a steward of the Lord’s goods”; 1117, “The Church . . . is the faithful steward of God’s mysteries”; 2238, “God has made [those in authority] stewards of his gifts”; 2280, “We are stewards, not owners, of the life God has entrusted to us”; and Nos. 373, 2042, 2404, 2417 and 2457 all deal with taking care of the planet as entrusted by God to man. Merriam-Webster defines stewardship as: “The careful and responsible management of something entrusted to one’s care.”

When we hear the word “stewardship” we must therefore remember that, strictly speaking, nothing we have is really our own. Even our very lives do not belong to us. They are a gift from God. In fact, everything is a blessing and we are simply stewards of our time, talent and treasure.

I encourage you to remember this simple rule of thumb: the more one gives, the happier one becomes. The more one sacrifices, the greater the reward. The more we give ourselves over to service, the holier we become.

St. Paul teaches us that holiness grows through charity. Holiness involves our willingness to give of ourselves. The more we give, the greater we grow in holiness.

In Christ,
Fr. Jeff Fasching
